M CKAYE COL. GREY.

is well known, have been found two indictments, one for burgiariously entering the Comptroller's office and the other for grand larceny in stealing certain vouchers placed for safe keeping in this depository of city accounts, was brought up again rday in the Court of Oyer and Terminer. Judge ardozo, who, during the present term, presides ever this branch of our criminal courts, occupied the beuch. The prisoners, who had been brought there under the escort of officials attached to the City Prison, looked in excellent physical condition, their appearance cer-tainly hardly justifying the subsequent statements of their counsel about their health having been grievously impaired by their profracted imprisonment. But few spectators were in Court—a fact snowing conclusively how rapidly in this great city of perpetual weary unrest for new causes of excite-ment what is one day a matter of absorbing interest passing notice.

WHEREABOUTS OF MR. CONNOLLY. This formed the burden of the opening remarks of District Attorney Garvin. He said that since they last appeared in Court and the counsel for the pris-eners, saulch and Hagerty, and himself discussed at length the proposition of proceeding at once with their trial or almit them to bail, no had continued his inquiries and search to ascertain the present whereabouts of ex-Comptroller His latest returns from all sources whence he had sought information was that Mr. search had been most diligent, and he felt it his duty to say that he could not properly try this suit en the part of the people without the presence of on the part of the people without the presence of Mr. Connoily. He feit bound in justice and honor to say this, and having said this he feit that he had discharged his duty.

GREAT RESPONSIBILITY.

He urged further that in the conduct of this trial great responsibility rested on him. The responsibility was of that very grave character that if he should go on with the trial in the absence of Mr. Connoily and lan to convict the prisoners to would be snojected to great censure, lie therefore deemed it his duty to say that he was not prepared or withing to enter now upon the trial. This was not his view alone of the case, but he had consulted others, and their views coincided with his own in this yegard.

view alone of the case, but he had consulted others, and their views coincided with his own in this regard.

THE PRISONERS' STANDPOINT.

Counsel for the Distoners said that he had no doubt that the District Attorney's well directed and well-meant efforts to secure the attendance in Court of Mr. Connolly, the complainant in the case, and thus far utterly tailed. He had amisself been cognitive to the search for air. Connolly, and the business Attorney had a number of men devoted exclusively to the search for air. Connolly, and that they had fatted in their musion and in securing the personal presence of Mr. Connolly in Court. It only remained for him to masst that the prisoners be admitted to bail, and that they be admitted to bail, and that they be admitted to bail, and that they be admitted to bail, on the spot, and that the fail to fixed at a reasonable sun, such as were warranted by the circumstances of the case. He gave a brief summary of the robbery of the vouchers, and added that the prisoners had been in close confinement since the 27th of last beptember—a period of five mouths, in which time the nearth of both had been greatly impaired.

There had been presented against the prisoners two indictments of burgary in the third degree cound be predictable of an entrance through the door of the Comptroller's office, and that the posting of the Comptroller's office, and that the posting of the Comptroller's office, and that the posting in of the nand through a broken glass and opening the door did not constitute burgary in the third degree. Against the prisoners there was really only one Indictment of grand larceny.

Freesure ov Popular Tumular.

In November 1981 in the General Residue has somers there was really only one maintiment, and they ought only to be treet on the maintiment of grand farceny.

In November last in the General Sessions he moved to quash the indictment and admit the prisoners to bail. Under the pressure of reform then prevailing throughout the country that Court thought it proper to dony the notion. He did not desire to place any other Court in an unpleasant position considering the futurisation and terror scattered throughout the community by what was supposed to be an attempt at mancipal reformation, and he therefore advised the prisoners to remain in prison until the proper time, and so that the procedution could have ample time to prepare them for the prosecution. The prisoners were kept an prison six weeks before they were indicated.

RAP AT THE GRAND JURY.

This indictment was purely a matter of tyrainy and oppression on the part of the Grand Jury, a law eas body, winen seemed to finhs that they could do exactly want they pleased. In this case the companion at was the late comptroller of this chy, I was clear that he was a necessary witness, for he was the custodian of mose papers, and he only could prove that he had not them still, which was the presumption of the law.

could prove that he had not them stil, we the presumption of the law.

The RERALD AS AUTHORITY.

He read an account to the New York

He read an account the New York Herald on the list inst, of an "increacy" between a Herald reporter and ar. Courtney and ex-judge Franka, by which it was conclusive, as he calmed, that ar. Councily would not appear to testify except in his own cases. It might, therefore, be concluded that he would not be found until his own cases were on trail.

that ar, Cosnotly would not appear to testily except in his own cases. It might, therefore, be concluded that he would not be found until his own cases were on trial.

DISDAINING ESCAPE.

In relation to the question of built he wished to call attention to the fact that the persons knew, through the public prints, that they were to be arrested, and had an opportunity to oscape, of which they had not availed themselves. On the argument to quasa the hiddennent he had presented what he here renewed, that the people, in their civil and crammal proceedings, presented contradictory theories. In their civil and crammal proceedings, presented contradictory theories, in their civil and crammal proceedings, presented contradictory theories, in their civil suit they presented the idea that meso youghers and been gradually abstracted from time to time, and that he abpearance of a burgiary was to cover by this abstraction. This, he cammed, was evident from the wording of the complaint drawn by Mr. O'conor. In this sait their moory was different, but it presented thin more clearly the nocessity of the presence of Mr. Connotty.

REASONABLE BAIL DESANDES.

The proceedad to argue that the parties were entilled to out, and to reasonable vail. Lately finit a million seemed to nave been monghi reasonable bail, and in one case a citizen had been held to one million of dollars bail, the most tyramine acts which ever took place under a remonstant government. In this case he histiced that the bail should occur made reasonable, according to web settied judicial views, and this, in view of the circumstance of the present of t
